RESEARCH CORPORATION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF GUAM

NO PETS AT WORK POLICY

The Research Corporation of the University of Guam (RCUOG) is responsible for assuring the health and safety of all employees. In keeping with this objective, RCUOG does not permit employees to bring their household pets or any animal to work. Animals may pose a threat to an employee's physical safety, threat of infection, or may cause allergic reactions in other employees. Some employees may feel distracted or uncomfortable by the presence of animals. In addition, this policy prevents pets from soiling office spaces or green spaces around offices and seeks to prevent potential damage to company property.

An employee who requires the help of a service animal (defined by 28 CFR 36.104 as "any dog that is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability") will be permitted to bring a service animal to the office, provided that the animal's presence does not create a danger to others and does not impose an undue hardship upon the company. RCUOG shall not be liable for the loss of, or injury to, any service animal brought to the office.

The exception to this policy relates to grant projects wherein working animals participate in achieving grant outcomes, such as the Invasive Species Detector Dog Pilot Program. These working animals are near and sometimes in workspaces. However, their care and handling is documented and managed by professional dog handlers as part of a project supported by the Research Corporation.
