From the Dean's Desk

Dear Professors, Students, and Friends of the College,

Welcome back to campus and to a bright new academic year ahead of us.

I hope each of you had an enjoyable and restorative Finakpo' break in the company of friends and family. As we start a new academic year, I am especially excited, because it promises to be a year of growth and celebration.

To achieve our goals and serve our mission, we must cultivate relationships with one another that spark innovation, discovery, and bold ventures. I am looking forward to building upon our previous work while creating new programs and opportunities.

As I begin to encounter more faculty, staff, and students on campus, I want you to know that I am overjoyed to have all of you back on campus. I can already feel the collective energy and optimism sparked by a new academic year, new classes, and endless new possibilities.

We have already begun to welcome new leaders who share UOG's commitment to inadahi yan inagolfi'e, respect, compassion, diversity and inclusion, excellence in research, and educational access for all. As we start the new academic year, our community will celebrate the legacy of the CLASS Bash, and our graduates at the Pinning Ceremony. I urge you to participate in these celebrations, in which we honor your achievements and the students' successes, research, service, and scholarship.

This year, I challenge you to go out and experience all that UOG has to offer. Our student-athletes were busy practicing and competing throughout the break; I hope you will support them in person as they fight for victory. We continue to host a broad array of theatre, and music performances, art exhibitions, and speakers, whose talents and insights are sure to inspire.

No matter your goals for growth and development this year, our university has resources and opportunities for you to reach and exceed them. I trust you will make the most of all these possibilities.

I hope you will join me in greeting the new academic year with gratitude for the resilience of our community and willingness to support one another. I proudly join you as we embark upon a new year and a new semester.

Have a safe, successful, and memorable academic year 2024-25.

Yours Truly,

James D. Sellmann, Ph. D.

Tritons write for Chinese Chamber of Commerce

Two CLASS Graduate interns, Arielle Taitano Lowe and Cassandra Santos, used their writing talent to assist the Chinese Chamber of Commerce of Guam (CCCG) in producing their 2023 Membership Directory. They wrote 10 biographical stories featuring prominent CCCG senior members. Arielle Taitano Lowe, now a doctoral student at UH-Manoa, and Dr. Rebecca Stephenson presented the Directory to Dean Sellmann.

UOG Theatre's "Next to Normal" in AAPI Month feature

Congratulations to the University of Guam Theatre on their recognition by the Music Theatre International (MTI). For Asian American Pacific Islander (AAPI) Heritage Month, MTI featured the November 2023 production of "Next to Normal." Cast members shared their experiences and new perspectives about the show. The article states that the "show is an emotional powerhouse, and the cast rose to the occasion."

Co-Valedictorians finding purpose in Guam

Two CLASS students were selected as class valedictorians: Hunter Sidell, a philosophy major, and Lidio Fullo, a psychology major with a military science minor. After moving to the island, Sidell saw Guam's need for medical professionals, giving him a renewed purpose. Sidell has taken the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) and plans to return to Guam as a physician. Fullo found his purpose in the Army ROTC program: to see a world with better leadership by becoming a "leader of leaders." Fullo was named a Distinguished Military Graduate and plans to serve as an officer in the U.S. Army Signal Corps.

Communication alumna's first news broadcast

Kyona Rivera, a recent communication graduate and former President of the UOG Student Government Association, started working at a Fox Affiliate in North Dakota in June. Rivera reported on "State to require Avian flu testing for lactating cattle ahead of ND State Fair" as her first news broadcast for KMOT TV. "She hit the ground running and was on TV right away," shared Dr. Raymond Anderson, professor of Communication.

Tritons complete Chinese Language Exam

Three students of Jennifer Lin's Chinese Language Courses passed the Test of Chinese as a Foreign Language (TOCFL) exam in a few months of studying Chinese. 恭喜 Congratulations to Angelina Uchima, Ulysses Story, and Ty Whitaker,!

Remembering Lam Pek Kim

Earlier this summer, the Tan family set up a memorial for their late mother, Lam Pek Kim, at the Tan Lam Pek Kim English and Communication building atrium.

Back in 2013, the Tan family named the building in honor of the mother, the family matriarch, and donated busts in the likeness of their parents.

UH Press reprints Dr. Hattori's book Colonial Dis-Ease

Dr. Anne Hattori, a professor of History, chronicled the U.S. Naval administration of Guam and changes to traditional systems of health and hygiene and cultural values. The book captures the story of Guam's Hansen's Disease (leprosy) patients.

First published as a hardcover copy in 2004, the book got new traction when the University of Hawaii (UH) Press recently reprinted a paperback version.

Book Title: "Colonial Dis-Ease: US Navy Health Policies and the Chamorros of Guam, 1898–1941 (2024)."

Dr. Jeffery documents wartime past of Chuuk Lagoon

A team led by Dr. William Jeffery, a professor of Anthropology, is hoping to shed light on untold stories and sites at Chuuk Lagoon, focusing on the remnants of World War II on Tonoas Island. The team is conducting marine ecology surveys and learning about indigenous Chuukese history. "The war remains are not just shipwrecks. Tonoas was heavily bombed. It had a submarine base. It had a seaplane base," Dr. Jeffery said. Watch the project video on YouTube.

Darlene R. Moore Scholarship

This scholarship honors the memory of Darlene R. Moore.

Born in Eugene, Oregon, Moore moved to Guam in 1976 and made significant contributions to the field of archaeology. She worked at the Territorial Archaeology Laboratory and was one of the earliest female archaeologists in Guam. Moore earned her Bachelor's degree at the University of Guam (UOG) in 1979 and her Master's degree in 1984. She worked on various projects for UOG and co-authored significant reports, including the Tumon Bay Report in 1984.

In the late 1980s, Moore founded Micronesian Archaeological Research Services (MARS), which later became a non-profit corporation. As President of MARS for 30 years, she led approximately 150 excavations in Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Yap. Moore was recognized as the world's foremost expert on pre-contact ceramics of the Chamorro people and for studying the harvesting and planting of native and introduced plants on the Marianas. She has published numerous scientific papers, presented at international scientific meetings, and received several accolades, commending her for her work in Guam.

Call for Applications: To be Announced
